SUMMARY OF ST. LOUIS MARKETS

There was too much bearish news in sight to justify a further advance in fut grain prices yesterday. The unofficial, though widely circulated, damage rep from the winter-wheat belt were regarded with suspicion by most of the spec traders, and even a good cash demand was not potent to check the declines in the active options. Snow's crop estimate alone was calculated to make the buyers stop and think. This very interesting bit of statistical information indicated that the outlook for the new crop was very promising. It showed that the condition was unusually good, that the acreage was large and that a very small percentage of the seeded crop had been plowed up. Advices from the Northwest were that seeding was rapidly progressing and that the acreage would be materially larger than last year. Cables were fairly steady and the movement to all Western markets was rather slow. Nevertheless trading sentiment was unmistakably bearish, and about the only buying noted was by July shorts early in the session. May closed very weak and July moderately lower.

There seemed to be some congestion in May corn, and this option was strong throughout the session. July held up for awhile, but closed on the downturn, in line with wheat.
